

What is claimed is:

1. A method of increasing the efficacy of a peroxide for topical use in the treatment of a skin condition comprising adding a tertiary amine to the peroxide, with the exclusion of erythromycin, to increase radicals formed by the peroxide on/in the skin.